Public Power Week Festivities

Public Power Week 2010 at Clatskanie PUD in Clatskanie, Oregon was filled with activities aimed at promoting the benefits of public power in the community. To start the week off, the PUD co-sponsored the first annual Clatskanie Health & Safety Fair. Employees and Board of Directors staffed an information table with giveaways and safety brochures and held a free drawing every hour for those who could answer three safety questions. Laptops were available for kids to play safety games and employees provided electrical safety training with the help of the popular electrical safety demonstration board.

Another activity conducted was the annual tradition of hanging “Public Power Community” banners in the many communities served by the PUD. The banners are left hanging for most of the month of October. The office was open as usual and customers were invited in for free coffee and cookies, free compact fluorescent light bulbs and a chance to win some great prizes. “Public Power Week is a good time to recognize and remind our customer-owners how they benefit from public power” says Greg Booth, General Manager.
